ANZCO's educational and cultural programs, including All Stops Out!, introduce children of all backgrounds to the thrill and wonder of the pipe organ, broadening their horizons, and for many, reaping life-changing benefits.

17 year-old Cassie said:

"When it comes to the pipe organ, there are no two that are exactly the same. This means every time you are given the opportunity to play on a new organ it's an entirely different experience. When ANZCO gave me the invaluable opportunity to travel as part of the ANZCO Organ Scholar Exchange program, I was beyond thrilled! On each instrument I was given an organ lesson, which enabled me to further develop my skills in playing. It also introduced me to many fantastic people."

15 year-old Daniel said:

"The 'All Stops Out!' programme was, in my opinion, a roaring success. I have never seen so many children so enthused about the King of Instruments... EVER!"

A Grade 5 class wrote:

"It was a day to remember. It was really cool. It was AWESOME. The tunes were so catchy that we jumped up and danced along. From watching this many of us were inspired to want to learn the pipe organ."

DID YOU KNOW?

- The first pipe organs were heard in Australia some 200 years ago.
- Over the last two centuries, the history of the pipe organ in Australia has mirrored the development of the instrument in the UK, Europe and North America.
- Australian pipe organ builders have operated from the middle of the 19th century and remain to this day.
- The pipe organ has the largest repertoire of any musical instrument.
- Generations of Australian organists have performed on these magnificent instruments to millions of Australians.

There can be no question that the future of the pipe organ in Australia and New Zealand is at the crossroads. If this precious cultural legacy is to continue 'down under' we must act now.

"Organ playing is the manifestation of a will filled with a vision of eternity."

PATRON OF THE ANZCO ACADEMY APPEAL

Professor Emeritus Ian R. Harper

I encourage you to give to the ANZCO Academy Appeal to secure the future of the pipe organ in Australia. The King of Instruments is second only to a full symphony orchestra as the ultimate experience in musical expression. To all those who have been spiritually or emotionally transformed by the pipe organ, we need your help!

Our Australian pipe organ heritage has been left to us in trust. We need your help to capture the hearts and minds of children and young men and women before their secondary schooling is completed. This is vital for the long-term viability of any pursuit, most especially that of the pipe organ.

A major part of ANZCO's mission is to encourage and enable young Australians to enjoy listening to, and learning to play, the pipe organ.

We believe the success of our College of Organists is a crucial plank in the long-term visibility of the pipe organ in Australian society. Please support us.

Professor Emeritus Ian R. Harper
