ANZCO's educational and cultural programmes introduce children of all backgrounds to the thrill and wonder of the pipe organ, broadening their horizons, and for many, reaping life-changing benefits.

17 year-old Cassie from Melbourne said:

"When it comes to the pipe organ, there are no two that are exactly the same. This means every time you are given the opportunity to play on a new organ it's an entirely different experience. When ANZCO gave me the invaluable opportunity to travel as part of the ANZCO Organ Scholar Exchange programme, I was beyond thrilled! On each instrument I was given an organ lesson, which enabled me to further develop my skills in playing. It also introduced me to many fantastic people."

15 year-old Daniel from Christchurch said:

"The 'All Stops Out!' programme was, in my opinion, a roaring success. I have never seen so many children so enthused about the King of Instruments... EVER!"

A Grade 5 class from Snells Beach wrote:

"It was a day to remember. It was really cool. It was AWESOME. The tunes were so catchy that we jumped up and danced along. From watching this many of us were inspired to want to learn the pipe organ."

The Challenge and The Opportunity

Please help us to:

- promote the teaching and learning of the organ
- use pipe organs as cultural assets for the benefit of all
- operate an Academy to realise this vision

ANZCO (Registered in NZ, Charity No. CC47805) is the only institution working at a national and international level in Australasia building a sustainable community of organists by promoting the teaching and learning of the organ. Donations are tax deductible.

DID YOU KNOW?

- The first New Zealand pipe organ was built by a timber merchant in the Hokianga in 1850.
- The oldest pipe organs in New Zealand are English-built and date from the late 18th century.
- New Zealand pipe organ builders have operated from the middle of the 19th century and remain active to this day.
- The pipe organ has the largest repertoire of any musical instrument.
- Generations of New Zealand organists have performed on these magnificent instruments to generations of New Zealanders.

We still have an uphill battle on our hands! Will you help us in raising awareness of this priceless cultural legacy – especially among our young New Zealand musicians – this fabulous thing called ORGAN MUSIC?

“Organ playing is the manifestation of a will filled with a vision of eternity.”
